FYI

I might need to know the senior most person from each Service that cleared the CAP.

Joe, (b)(6)

As you both sent essentially the same email at same time I will reply to you together.

All the Services had the chance to review and clear and all were briefed on tight clearance process. That stated there was NO specific tasking or requirement for individual Service Secretaries to review. I always viewed them as being part of final coordination and you both will recall that I briefed this intent last week to DSD. She gave us guidance to compress and accelerate final clearance.

Here is the solution, the CAP will not change much after it comes back from WH. We use the next two weeks for me to do desk side briefs to each Service Secretary. Paul and I discussed this and agreed to initiate it our end, but It would be helpful if DSD directed that each Service Secretary take the brief.

Hi Richard. Did Navy Secretariat coordinate on the draft CAP. SECNAV office says they weren't provided an opportunity. I figured they must have missed something but wanted to check with you. Thanks.
